If you are new around here - hello! Jacob is my son-in-law and he just turned 30! My daughter Hannah turned 30 twenty days before him.

For those of you who don't know, Hannah and Jacob met in the 5th grade. We moved here when Hannah was 9 and in 4th grade. Her one complaint that first day of school was that no one talked to her at the bus stop. She told me if there was a new kid the next year, that should would talk to that person.

That person turned out to be Jacob! She walked right over, struck up a conversation and Jacob went home and told his Mom "I just met the girl I am going to marry." Cue the cuteness!

Fast forward they started officially dating in high school, got married in 2017 and they are the perfect compliment to each other.

And when Hannah decides to start painting a room at 10:00 p.m. on a Thursday, Jacob doesn't hesitate to grab a paint brush.
Happy birthday Jacob!

AIR FRYER EGG BITES

Anything you can put in an oven you can put in an air fryer. I love the silicone muffin cups. I found them at Bed Bath & Beyond but I am sure you can find them online.

These air fryer egg bites can be so customizable depending on what you have on hand veggie wise. I used a spicy salsa so I didn't need any additional seasoning, but you can adjust to what you have on hand.

For four egg bites (2 servings)

- 1 cup fresh spinach, chopped
- 4 tablespoons salsa
- 4 eggs
- 1 ounce cheddar cheese, divided

Heat air fryer to 360 for 5 minutes.

Spray silicone molds with avocado oil spray. Divide the spinach on the bottom of each cup. Add 1 tablespoon salsa, and one cracked egg into each cup, (I scrambled once in the cup because I don't like a runny egg) then divide the cheese over each one.

Bake at 360 for 8 minutes. Let cool 2 minutes before removing. Love that it makes two servings. I simply reheat at 360 for 4 minutes to eat breakfast another day.

On my plan two egg bites is 3 points. Click here to see what the points would be on your plan.

LIFE

I went to Boca Raton last week! It was so last minute. I had to reschedule my trip from Florida. Erica called me on the 19th to wish me a happy birthday and she said "we need to reschedule your trip" and her husband Dan said "how about next week?" Um, okay! Sunday morning I booked the trip and flew out on Tuesday.

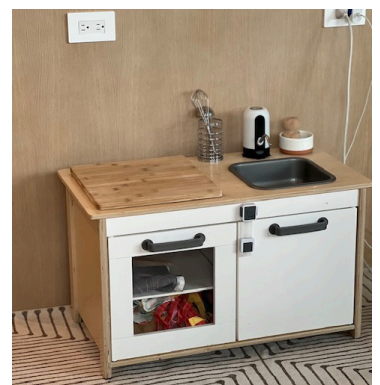

It was a working trip, but we did go to a sushi restaurant opening. We only stayed 15 minutes because there were so many people - I've never seen so many women in high heels, plastic surgery and botox in one place in my life. It was like lifestyles of the rich and famous! We ended up going to an Italian restaurant called Tramonti's in Delray Beach. So good!

One tip I can give when eating out when out of town is have a little bit of everything but not a lot of everything. The plate in the first photo is my plate - delicious mussels, salad and a bit of pasta.

Friday we went to our friend Bobby's house for a Facebook Live. We made the most delicious tabbouleh and I can't wait to recreate that for you guys. If you don't follow Bobby he has tons of videos on YouTube. You can check him out here. I also met his daughter Rose Honey who is just as cute in real life as she is in her videos. I thought we were going to get together later in the weekend, but it was just the one visit - next time we will cook together more Bobby! And yes, I need that t-shirt. 😊 And how cute is Rose's little kitchen?!

Erica also took me to Sephora and I bought more makeup than I ever have in my lifetime, but it was so worth it. It helped that she was there to guide me through the process. I did a blog post with all the links and tips she taught me for applying makeup over 50. I am 18 years older than Erica 😊

On Saturday night we went to Planta in West Palm Beach. A vegetarian and vegan restaurant that was amazing. The food came out faster than we got our water glasses filled! Once of the dishes I want to recreate is their bang bang broccoli - stay tuned!
